Mrs. Ida Morton Testifies Before the Lexow Investigating Committee.

But Said Mrs. McCarthy Asked Her for $50 When a Ward Man Called.

PROMISED TO FIX THE CAPTAIN.

Promises of More Sensational Disclosures at To-Day's Session Brings a Large Crowd.

Before the Police Investigating Committee resumed its work this morning there were rumors that another day of sensational disclosures was to be ex-pected. Mr. Goff, the chief inquisitor, hinted last evening that he was pre-pared to open up a new line of inquiry to-day, and that a number of witnesses had been summoned who would give some novel and interesting testimony. The result was that the space behind was crowded with bluecoats this morn ing, while four or five fashionably dressed women, who were brought into court by Parkhurst detectives, were given sents in the opposite side of the rail rear the counsel's table. There was promise of a lively session. Uncle Dan Bradley, who was one of the first members of the Committee to arrive, was considerably exercised over letter which came in his morning mail. It contained a Chicago newspaper clipping three or four columns long containing advertisements evidentplaces of questionable resort in the Windy City.

Chiengo Wants the Committee. 'I wonder what they sent that to me queried the Senator. "They surely can't expect the Committee to go out and investigate the wickedness of Chicago. We have enough to do right here

Mr. Goff was not present when Chairman Lexow called the Committee to order at 1045 A. M., so Mr. Moss asked the Committee to wait for him. He soon came in wearing a leaf of ivy and a sprig of shamrock in the buttonhole of his coat.

He glanced with evident satisfaction at the row of "June buds from the Tenderloin" ranged up behind the table. Some of them wore a look of curiosity, others seemed frightened, and one had a glance of defiance in her eye, as Mr. Goff went up to the desk to have a preliminary conference with the Senators.

All the members of the Committee were present with the exception of Senator faxton. Chairman Lexow made the announcement that there were no suspicions against Doorkeeper Anderson, who shad been spoken of as having disappeared and was suspected of having betrayed the secrets of the Committee.

Anderson, he said, had been sent away on work connected with the Committee.

Divver Not Heard From.

Divver Not Heard From.

"Has Police Justice Divver expressed any desire to make a statement to the Committee in vindication of himself?" asked Chairman Lexow of Mr. Goff. "I have received no communication whatever from Justice Divver," said Mr. Goff.

Ex-Judge Ransom said that although he was not authorized to speak for Justice Divver, he fancied that he was more deliberate than Senator Roesch in appearing before the Committee.

He said he saw in the morning papers that Justice Divver had been interviewed and had denied very emphatically the truth of the statements made against him yesterday by Clark, the Bunco man, and he presumed that the Justice resarded that as sufficient for the present.

"We only wanted to give him an opportunity to appear personally should he choose to do so," said Chairman Lexow, "in accordance with the precedent established in the case of Justice Roesch."

As Justice Divver was not in the court room and there was no one there to represent him, it was taken for granted that he regarded his denial of the charges against him in the newspapers as ample.

Lucy McCarthy's Housekeeper.

Mr. Goff then called as the first witness Ida L. Morion, who said she was employed in 1890 and 1892 by Lucy McCarthy as housekeeper and accountant.

This was a disorderly house, and Mrs. Morton said she accepted the position of housekeeper from necessity. She had an invalid husband and children to support, and said all she did was to keep he books and look after the house.

"How many girls did Mrs. McCarthy have in her house?"

"There were ten boarders and other came in in the evening. I was not an inmate of the house, in the usual sense of the term."

The witness went on to say that Mrs. McCarthy's house was at first at 104 West Forty-ninth street, but she subsequently opened the house next door at No. 106.

Afrs. McCarthy did her banking at the Lucy McCarthy's Housekeeper.

"A man came in and saw Mrs. Mc-Carthy in the parlor," said the witness. "and after some time she came out and asked me for $20. She accused me of running the house carelessly in her absence, of leaving the door open and allowing too much noise in the place.

him that she would make it all right with the captain.

On another occasion, Mrs. Morton said, she saw Mrs. McCarthy speak to a patrolmau on post, and then sent her to get a drink of whiskey and a $5 bill.
She also got another drink of whiskey
and another $5 bill for the policeman, who relieved the first at midnight. Both policemen were in uniform.

The young women who boarded in the house paid their board to her every day.
If Mrs. McCarthy was home she would pay the money over in her, but if she was away, the money would be deposited in the bank.

The next witness called was Ada Clinton. She had come into court with a young man attired in a stylish Summer suit. She was sworn, but Mr. Goff sudenly changed his tactics and asked her to step aside and allow the young man who was her companion to take the stand. He was sworn, and said his name was charles F. Schloss, in the wholesale liquor business. He shald he came down with Miss Clinton at her request. He called on her last night, as usual, he said, and found that she had been subposenaed as a witness before the Committee.

"She sent for you, didn't she?" asked Mr. Goff.
"No, sir. I just dropped in. She said she didn't know where the court was."

On the slip usually filed with the circk at the hospital the name of a patient is generally given, but in the case of young Chamberlain this was omitted.

Dr. Spitka declined to speak of his patient further than to say that he was suffering from acute paranola.

He said that Chamberlain had been alling for four months, but that only yesterday afternoon he had been called to visit him professionally.

There Was Good Reason for It.

A man was one day making a trip on the "fiyer" of a Wyoming railroad, says the Converse County Press. Passage on these trains is never taken except for journeys of considerable length; walking is as easy and much safer for short distances. On this occasion the movement was even more deliberate than usual, and the passenger called the conductor to his seat and said:
"Isn't this motion pretty slow?"
"Well, we ain't flying, I admit."
"May I ask what the trouble is, then?"

"May I ask which then?"
"Certainly. We found a fine two-yearold steer stuck in a trestle back here before you got on, and stopped and helped it out. You know, the rules of the road are in such cases that the animal belongs to the company."
"But I don't see why that should make you run so slow."
